Here are four tips to guide your conversation with your healthcare provider:

If you are one of the millions of Americans who takes a prescription medicine, ask yourself: Do I fully understand the benefits and potential risks of the medicines I'm taking? If your response is no, take the time to Talk Before You Take.

G. If it's a once-a-day dose, is it best to take it in the morning or evening?

Will this medicine work safely with any other medicines
I'm taking, including over-the-counter medicines?

S. When should I expect the medicine to begin to work, and how will I know if it's working?

9. How should I store this medicine?

10. Is there any additional written information I should read about the medicine?

Always follow up with your healthcare provider if you still have questions or concerns about your medicine.

Before you take a prescription medicine, ask your healthcare provider the following questions. It's also helpful to keep an up-to-date list of all medicines you're taking.

T. What's the name of the medicine, and what is it for?

2. How and when do I take it, and for how long?

 What side effects should I expect, and what should I do about them?

4. Should I take this medicine on an empty stomach or with food?

5. Should I avoid any activities, foods, drinks, alcohol, or other medicines while taking this prescription?
